Reporting Returns

When you receive a return of a circuit please report it to me. Returned circuits are our principal data for changes in CCCC membership.

When I receive your reports I ordinarily send a test cover to confirm your report. We don't want to lose a member because some postal clerk used the wrong rubber stamp.

In recent week other USA members and I have been receiving circuits which the US Postal Service returned to their overseas senders although the covers were correctly addressed. Of course we know that this happened only because the CCCC member was persistent and sent it to us again with a photo of the error by the USPS. So if you receive a return don't simply discard it. Let us know what happened.

The USPS errors appear to result from overreliance on OCR [Optical Character Reader] technology. It appears that no human ever checks covers rejected by the scanner. This also applies to outbound mail from the USA. This past week I had 5 of a mailing of 114 covers returned to me because the scanner read my box number in small [4 point] blue in the Cachet rather than the large [10 point] black address.

So enjoy your postal service but be alert for errors.
