Stamps and Stickers

What is a collectable stamp? The simplest answer is that it is any stamp which we collect. But the variety issued by postal authorities is almost endless.

Many collectors prize definitive stamps which are the base currency for post offices. Many more collectors desire commemorative stamps. Do you want stamps showing people or scenery? Would you like history? What is your choice?

More choices include the computer generated stickers. Most stickers print a value on official paper. Some stickers have illustrations like commemorative stamps. Others only have letters and numbers. Are they like regular stamps?

What about meter strips? Some postal authorities such as the USPS normally use them for high value letters and most parcels. Or you might sort private meters by type, firm, or even color. I see we have CCCC members who collective these meter strips. Are you one of them? Anything might be a "collectable."

What is your choice?
